Brian and Angie Savage have been working in Africa over the last 20 years and have committed their adult lives to the provision of healthcare in rural communities where such services are weak, or non-existent. The purpose of this event is to raise funds to support their efforts in the medical facility in Haydom, Tanzania.

They, together with a team of committed locals, are building an eye care service and developing the health centre in Haydom, which even the poorest people have access to. The centre benefits around 700,000 people and offers services, which include mother and childcare, vaccinations, eye glasses and cataract extractions. The funds raised will be used to provide essential equipment, extend services and the training of further medical staff at the centre (further information available on request—see below).
