

How snoring or a tickly cough can make you a lethal driver

FACEBOOK 'RIPPING SOCIETY APART'

Blistering attack on social media giant – by one of its ex top bosses

FACEBOOK is ripping apart the fabric of society, according to a former top boss.

The technology chief said the social media site was 'eroding human interactions' as well as leaving

By Katherine Rushton
Media and Technology Editor

its users feeling 'vacant and empty'

'It is at a point now where we have created tools which are ripping apart the fabric of how society works – that is truly where we are,' said 41-year-old

Chamath Palihapitiya. 'The short-term dopamine-driven feedback loops that we have created are destroying how society works: no civil discourse.'

'No cooperation, misinformation, mistruth. This is not an American problem. This is not about Russian ads. This is a

Turn to Page 6

Facebook is "ripping apart the fabric of society", according to a former employee of the social media giant quoted in the Daily Mail. Chamath Palihapitiya says Facebook is leaving

POST CARD

CORRESPONDENCE FOR ADDRESS COMBE
-PM
SEP
&
ON BE

FOLLOWING JESUS

THE ULTIMATE
ADVENTURE